Intraoral Scanner

3Shape's third-generation digital intraoral color scanner, TRIOS 3, is available in pen-grip, handle-grip, and chair-mounted versions. New features include an integrated intraoral camera; a smaller, rounded scan tip for enhanced patient comfort; and an automatic tooth-shade-measurement system for improved accuracy, according to the manufacturer.

Chair and Delivery System

The updated 300 series chair and delivery system from A-dec feature a virtual chair pivot and a third delivery-system option—a Radius-style configuration that permits easy switching between left- and right-handed operators—according to the company. Because the chair is built as a modular unit, the delivery system, touchpads, foot controls, lights, and monitors can all be specifically configured for each practice.

Class III Appliance

Henry Schein Orthodontics has announced the launch of its Carriere Motion Class III Appliance, a minimally invasive device designed to treat Class III malocclusions without extractions, orthognathic surgery, or face-masks. Intended for use at the beginning of treatment, before brackets or aligners, the Motion Class III can reduce treatment time by several months, according to the manufacturer. Intraoral elastics connect the appliance with maxillary anchorage for bodily movement of the lower posterior segment.
